Due to the overwhelmingly positive feedback for our Annual SAP Doctoral & Early Career Program, we are hosting it again in Chicago. Based on participants' remarks, we have made some exciting changes to make the program better than ever!

For the third year in a row, we have designed a compelling one-day program specially tailored to guide Doctoral and Early Career Scholars through the "academic jungle" of AoM 2018. While this program is similar to other consortia in some regards, SAP's Doctoral and Early Career Program goes above and beyond traditional sessions by fully integrating our program into the broader SAP community and by targeting early career scholars as well as doctoral students.

This day long program, specifically designed for individuals seeking to deepen and enhance their SAP-related knowledge and skills, will take place on Friday, August 10th. The Doctoral and Early Career Program will again contain three carefully selected Professional Development Workshops, which all participants will be automatically registered to attend, a unique Q&A session with this year's patron, Paula Jarzabkowski, a seat at the official SAP Community Dinner that night, and plenty of opportunities for new scholars to network and become acquainted with the larger SAP community.

Space is limited to 20 participants.

To apply, please send your application to christina.wawarta.15@mail.wbs.ac.uk. Please include information on yourself, your career stage, your research project and its fit with SAP (if applicable), and why you want to take part in the program.
